remain silent, and, without intending to bur-den you with an extended letter, I will offer w few thoughts upon the condition of public af-

agreement. At an early hour in the session, on the motion of a Senator from Kentucky, (Mr. Pow-ell), a committee of thirteen Senators was appointed to consider the state of the country, and report a remedy. It was composed of rep-rescutative men from different parts of the Union. After long conference, for many days, the chairman reported to the Senate that they had been wholly unable to agree, and a reference to the journal of the committee will revea the radical differences between the Republicans and others.

I come, now, to the vast concession to the North The southern States assert, with great unanimity, the right of all the citizens of all the States to enter the common Territories with their property of whatever kind, including slaves, and to have it protected by the common government. This right is sustained by a highly respectable class of opinion in the northern States, and has been affirmed by the highest judicial tribunal known to the Constitution.— It does not fall within the scope of this letter to re-argue the question. I treat it as a settled right, upon which the argument has been ex-so far as the southern States and their slave property are concerned, to yield this right in threejourths of the existing territory to save it in the remaining fourth. The citizens of the northern States and their property are to be protected in all the territory; the citizens of the southern States with their property in one-fourth of it—Prohibition of slave property north of 36 deg. 30 min., recognition and protection of itsouth of that line—and the rule to apply to all territory hereafter acquired—this is the principle of the proposed amendment. And the last-named feature is vital. If the Territorial question can be settled at all, itshould be settled for all time, and locked up in the Constitution. Otherwise, there can be no hope of exemption from inces ti n of the Federal Government.

I am sure that this plan of adjustment has been offered, not as the full measure of our rights, but as a patriotic concession, with the hope of obtaining promptly security and peace. In view of the knowledge we bave of the progress of political anti-slavery opinion, and of the manner in which the Federal gov-ernment may be employed by hostile influences, it falls far short of what would be required in tions for all the Magazines and Literary papers in the country and out of it; among the former, the Cornbill, Temple Bar, the Atlantic, Harper, Godey Peterson, Knickerbooker, Eclectic, Blackwood, the British Quarterlies, &c., &c. Propositions, conceived in a spirit of patriotic concessions, were offered by Senator Crittenden. I refer to them because they concede much to the spirit of concillation. They embrace the following, as amendments to the Constitution: '
That Congress shall have no power to abolish slavery in the forts, dock yards, and other places under its jurisdiction, in the southern

And in regard to the Territories: That in all the territory now held, or hereaf-ter to be acquired, north of lattitude 36 deg. 30

These provisions, the resolutions propose, shall be made a part of the Constitution, and,

A glance at these resolutions will show the immense concession they offer for security and ment would become in form and in fact consolipeace. Leaving out of view for a moment the Territorial question, the other amendments are but declaratory of the present constitution.— Congress has no power now to abolish slavery in the places within its jurisdiction in the southais of Federal representation and the return of fugitive slaves are stipulated for in express terms in the present instrument. If it be said that Congress may constitutionally abolish siavery in this District I will not pause to argue the question, but only enter a protest against

If agreed to, they should be unamendable

It must be confessed that it offers but a faint hope of security and good faith when powers not granted to Congress by the Constitution

Upon these points, then, as I suppose, there is concession neither upon the one side nor the other. The free States are only asked to agree that they will never use their growing power to deprive the South of existing rights, which

Mr. Crittenden's Territorial amendment offers, so far as the southern States and their slave proand locked up in the Constitution. Otherwise, sant anti-slaveryagitation, and the country would soon be thrown again into the midst of political and financial convulsions. The southern States cannot afford to be shut off from all posbility of expansion towards the tropics by the hostile ac

A FINE ASSORTMENT OF WATCH

I cannot suppose that Kentucky would consider her rights, interests, and honor safe under any settlement less thorough than this proposed by Mr. Critteaden. Any attempt to emasculate it by excluding from its acope after acquired territority, or by failing to recognize and protect alave property couth of the line by language as clear and explicit as that employed to prohibit it north of the line, or by veiling its provisions in ambiguous phrases, could only result in new agitations and convulsions. I believe that Kentucky wants a thorough settlement or none, and one that any plain and honest man can understand.

I have not referred to the personal liberty bills of the Northern States, because they are sider her rights, interests, and honor safe under
